Practical Patriotism

Most of us feel a personal responsibility for the victorious ending of this war. Our part may be small, but we can all help. Let us not magnify the mistakes which always accompany the doing of any big thing. Put the mistakes behind, things of the past, and work with all your strength for the future.

Miss Mabel Razoux Leaves High School to Teach in East Providence—Hector Carnegie Called to Newport—Red Star on Service Flag—Spontaneous Combustion Caused Freight Car Loss.

Miss Mabel Razoux, for the past year and a half a member of the high school faculty as English teacher, has resigned and leaves this (Monday) morning for East Providence, where she is to teach. Miss Razoux is a graduate of Radcliffe college and came here in September, 1916. She is to be succeeded by Miss Ruby Meade.

Many local people attended a dance held at the grange in Canterbury Saturday evening.

Ball Player Assigned to Newport.

Hector Carnegie, who has resided here for many years, enlisted recently at Providence as a second class machinist in the naval reserves. He leaves this (Monday) evening for Newport training station. Mr. Carnegie made quite a reputation as a ball player in this vicinity. He played on many of the town teams around and when he became a resident here played shortstop for the local team. His enlistment brings the total up to over 50 young men who have volunteered or have been drafted for the different branches of service.

Red Star for Patriot.

Many have wondered what the red star on the Lawton Mills corporation's service flag denoted. It shows that a local young man attempted three times to enlist and died after undergoing an operation to become one of Uncle Sam's fighters. The late Charles Pailiser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Pailiser, attempted at Providence, R. I., New London, Ct., and Charleston, Mass., to enlist in the navy. He underwent an operation at the Backus hospital, Norwich, which proved unsuccessful.

STATE POLICE AT WESTLEY

Connecticut Officers Decide That Tony Terresa Did Not Steal Mystic Tires—Denis Burkett Sentenced to State Workhouse—Act Creating Highway Commission Favorably Reported—Samuel A. Allison Dies in Mystic.

Officers Rudd and Mitchell of the Connecticut state police were at the Westley police station Saturday and with Chief of Police Brown closely questioned Tony Terresa, who was taken in by Chief Brown Friday in connection with the theft of 60 automobile tires from the Backus Tire mart in Mystic Nov. 21. Sixteen of the tires were in the possession of Tony, who declared that he bought 30 tires from an Italian that he did not know and that he had sold 14 tires to purchasers in Hartford. He says at the time of the purchase he had no idea that the tires had been stolen. He claims he paid $500 for the tires, borrowing $300 from Patsy Toscano and that he had paid that sum back to Toscano. The state policemen were satisfied that Terresa had no direct connection with the theft and therefore did not ask for his arrest. The only charge that could be made against him would be for receiving stolen goods, and that was a matter for the Rhode Island authorities to probe, if deemed expedient.

From the description given of the man who sold the tires to Terresa, he is one of the pair now under arrest for breaks in that city, and Tony went to New London with the state policemen to identify that individual. A shotgun taken from the Backus mart, with the tires, has been found in the apartment of one of the New London prisoners. There is positive proof that the man arrested in New London cleaned out a grocery store in that city that led direct to their arrest and that since then the New London police have connected them with the theft at a tailor shop and a garage in that city. It is probable that these same chaps cleaned out the Backus Tire mart in Mystic. The state police are now endeavoring to learn of the disposition of the balance of the tires that were stolen.

Dennis Burkett, who claims he has been in and out of the army since 1912 and who claimed Boston as his home, was before Judge Williams in the Third district court Saturday. He was arraigned on the charge of being an idle person of doubtful reputation, having no visible means of support, and with living without employment. He pleaded not guilty. After hearing the evidence, which showed that he had been pandering and had been at that game in Westley for three days, he was adjudged guilty and sentenced to one year in the state workhouse. Burkett made himself obnoxious in High street Friday afternoon and after squaring off to pedestrians, would have a set-to with an imaginary foe. He is the man who was charged with Police Sergeant West, who placed him under arrest and took him to the police station. Five minutes afterwards the police officer dropped dead in front of the Rhode Island hotel.

An act amending the act creating a highway commission for the town of Westley came before the senate Friday favorably reported from the judiciary committee, with recommendation for its passage. The amendment provides for the construction of sidewalks on the 50-50 basis between the town and abutting property owners. Senator Casey criticized the bill and said that in many respects it was repetition of existing laws. He said that some of its provisions were in violation of the constitution upon some citizens of Westley.

Senator Langworthy of Westley said the people of Westley in financial town meeting had approved the passage of the bill. He said it was satisfactory to the people most interested. He said he wanted the passage of the bill.

Senator Archambault said the bill was defective in that it did not give the person whose property was involved the right of appeal. Senator Aldrich said this provision was provided for in the bill and that adding that similar acts had been passed. The act was then adopted by the senate.

Local Laconics.

Eighty registrants were examined physically in the Westley town hall Saturday.

Christ Episcopal church contributed $100 to the national church war fund of $500,000.

Samuel A. Allison, 54, who died suddenly in Mystic Saturday, was born in Westley, was unmarried and lived with his sister, Miss Annie Allison, in Ledward avenue. He was employed as a stonecutter for more than 30 years, but due to a lull in the trade he secured employment about three months ago at the shipyard in Mystic.

These Grand Army men have been detailed to assist in the school sessions on Grand Army flag day, Feb. 12, Lincoln's birthday: William D. Babcock, Bradford, Stephen A. Condon, Dunn's Corners; John B. Brown, Pleasant street; Christopher Simmons, Westley High; Charles A. Clark, Elm street; Charles Stebbins, Park avenue; William Champlin, Quarry Hill.

In preparing the annual budget the town councilmen realized that after the usual appropriations were made only $16,500 would be at the disposal of the highway commission, which required $42,000. The town has been on the down slide at the rate of about $25,000 and the debt limit has been reached. The tax rate cannot be raised, so to raise the needed money there must be a special tax.
